LOCAL AND GENERAL NEWS.

The Ridotto Club Entertained. The members of the Ridotto Club were very hospitably entertained last evening by Mrs. Albert Barnes at her pleasant home, 347 North Church street. The gathering was in honor of Miss Belle Ewing, who will soon take her departure for Europe in company with the Misses Gillett, of Elkhardt. The chief diversion of the evening was six-hand progressive euchre. Mrs. F. M. Young won the ladies' prize and G. C. Kinsman the gentlemen's. A most delightful evening was enjoyed by all. Among those in attendance were Misses Ewing, Burrows, Barnes, Rogers, Jones, Judson, Powers, Grimes, Howell, Fuller, Clark, Mrs. F. J. Sedgwick, Messrs. C. A. Ewing, G. W. Powers, D. A. Muffin, C. B. Moore and F. M. Young; C. F. Reynolds and their wives; Messrs. Kinsman, Clugston, Geary, Shults, Curtis, Randolph, Taylor, Hatfield, Frank and Ed Powers, Berry and Will Emsie, Barnes, Johns.

Officers Installed. The following newly elected officers were installed last evening at the meeting of Ionia Lodge, No. 312. A. F. & A. M.: Thomas Coleman, worshipful master; George E. Miller, senior warder; Miriam Johnson, junior warder; C. M. Allison, treasurer; Robert Phillips, secretary; E. T. Coleman, senior deacon; W. H. Pierce, junior deacon; Paul Hickisch, senior steward; P. R. Crystal, junior steward; William Towling, Tyler.

Is the N. Y. Sun's estimate of the population of the different states (to be ascertained by the national census next summer) puts down Illinois at 3,575,000, which is too low by fully 300,000. In 1880 Illinois had 3,077,871 inhabitants, and at the Presidential election of the same year cast 622,312 votes, which was one vote for five inhabitants. In 1888 Illinois cast 718,450 votes, being an increase of 125,130. It is safe to estimate the same ratio of increase for the next two years, which would be 31,550, making the total increase 157,680 votes, which multiplied by five, gives an increase of 788,400 inhabitants in the ten years, making the population of Illinois next summer 3,866,271, instead of 3,575,000, as put down by the Sun.

"Hold by the Enemy." One of the greatest of American plays, it is generally conceded, is William Gillette's "Hold by the Enemy," which is to be presented at the Grand Opera House on next Friday evening, January 17th. The play is founded upon events which occurred during the late war, but it is remarkable for the absence of a single line of expression that would tend to arouse sectional animosities. The Southern sentiment is brought with more fervor and strength than one would suppose by the number of Union soldiers in the cast of characters. This fact is noticed more, perhaps, because it is laid in a Southern city under siege of Federal troops. It is replete with startling and charming situations. The characters and scenes are nicely interwoven, and the sentiment expressed is noble and elevating.

According to the New York Commercial Bulletin, the proposition in regard to silver advanced by Secretary Windom does not meet with much favor in the Senate Committee on Finance. The only Republican who would support it, this report says, is Jones, of Nevada. There is no chance that Voorhees and Beck, Democrats, would take the same side as Jones, while Morrill, Sherman, Allison, Aldrich and Hiseock, Republicans, and McPherson, Harris and Vance, Democrats, are put in opposition to the scheme. This, according to an intelligent newspaper authority, but one who is opposed to the proposition, is how the Senators who will deal with the question first, if it comes before the Senate, stand on the Windom plan. It is only fair to the Secretary, however, to say that in the bill which he intends to prepare he will endeavor to meet most of the objections which have been advanced against his scheme as was outlined in his annual report.

The New Discovery. You have heard your friends and neighbors talking about it. You may yourself be one of the many who know from personal experience just how good a thing it is. If you have ever tried it, you are one of its staunch friends, because the wonderful thing about it is that when once given a trial, Dr. King's New Discovery never afterwards holds a place in the ledger. It can never be used, it and should be afflicted with a cough, cold or any Throat, Lung or Chest trouble, secure a bottle at once and give it a fair trial. It is guaranteed every time, or money refunded. Trial Bottles Free, at Dr. A. J. Storer's drug store. 6m

The Southern Democrat, who are slashing away at every tariff that protects the industries of the Northern States, are remarkably well satisfied with the tariff that protects the rice of South Carolina and Georgia. That is the only duty that is "constitutional," save the sugar tariff, which is never a "tax."

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury. As Mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do are ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, and acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine, it is made in F. J. Cheney & Co. Sold by Druggists. 7c a bottle.

The Passionate Poet.

How very conservative Mr. Swinburne is in his daily habits. He generally takes an afternoon walk from Putney over to Wimbledon, where he "puts up" for a quarter of an hour at a house he is fond of visiting. He never carries a walking stick or an umbrella, though I have it on very good authority that he is not above lining his pockets at a confectioner's shop with sweets and biscuits, and dispensing these freely to youngsters whom he meets on the road. The other day Wimbledon was deluged and the common especially was a place to be avoided, but when the downpour was heaviest—about 4 o'clock—I saw Mr. Swinburne marching along toward his usual resting place, and he was protected against the ungentle rain from heaven by neither umbrella nor mackintosh. He was wet through. From his large brimmed felt hat rills of rain ran down upon his garments, his face was shining as if anointed with oil, his long white curls were in a miserable state. The number of stories, by the way, which are told at Wimbledon about the poet, whom every child in the village knows and admires (the admiration being, no doubt, a kind of cupboard love) is quite endless.

The other day I asked the confectioner's wife whom Mr. Swinburne honors with his custom whether she knew who the gentleman was who had just left her shop. "Oh, yes," she replied at once, "that's Mr. Swinburne, a private gentleman, but he isn't quite right in his head; he is what they call a poet, I'm told." When he is walking along in his solitary fashion Mr. Swinburne never takes his eyes off the ground, and he evidently does not see that he is the observed of all observers. The other day a charming young lady said to me, in an ecstasy of admiration: "If I only dared, wouldn't I like to have the honor of shaking hands with him? But he looks too stern." The sternness, however, vanishes altogether when, on their playground on the common, he sees the children at play or being wheeled about in their perambulators. — Pall Mall Gazette.

Importing Canaries. "I see you have got in quite a large stock of canaries," was the remark of a Globe reporter to a Boston bird man yesterday. "Yes," was the reply, "you see this is what we call canary bird season. For the past month or so about every steamer from Germany has brought large numbers of these yellow songsters to the American ports. This will continue until about the middle of January, when the German bird catchers will stop sending or send only small lots." "Do you expect to sell all you have here now?" "Oh, yes," he replied, "and many more, for I know why he is, but a great many people think that these birds come from those islands, but I never heard of any but German birds, that is, unless they were canaries bred in the countries where imported birds were taken."

"I suppose there are people in Germany, then, who make a business of raising them, are there not?" "Yes, some Germans do nothing else but raise the birds for export trade. In some of the large German cities, Hamburg, for instance, there are several large houses who raise birds entirely for jobbers in New York, with whom they have contracts to furnish them so many hundreds of birds a season."

"Are these canaries long lived?" "Well, that depends a great deal on what you would call long life. Their average life, however, is about ten years, although I have known some to live a great deal longer." — Boston Globe.

She Has a Fair Appetite at 102. Providence permitting, Mrs. Catharine Kuehn, of Manchester borough, will celebrate the 102nd anniversary of her birth on Tuesday next. Mrs. Kuehn was the consort of the late John Kuehn, father of John L. Kuehn, deceased, and is the grandmother of Jacob L. Kuehn, superintendent of the York Gas and Water works, of this city. After the death of her husband she resided for many years in the vicinity of Quaker's church, in Manchester township, but has recently resided with her youngest brother, Mr. Henry Quicker, who is about 75 or 76 years of age, in Manchester borough, about seven miles from this city. She is a most remarkable woman, retaining all her faculties, excepting that of hearing, which is slightly defective. Notwithstanding her great age, she is able to move about her home with the aid of a cane, has a fair appetite and sleeps fairly well. She says she was, about 12 years of age when George Washington died. — New York Age.

The Czarowitz's Bad Manners. A very bad impression was made by the czarowitz at the German autumn maneuvers. He is a delicate, stupid looking lad with execrable manners. As a proof of his glaring want of tact it may be mentioned that he persisted in addressing the German officers in French, although he speaks their own language very well. The Emperor William was palpably disgusted by the manifold gaucheries of his boorish guest, and treated him with the most frigid courtesy. After the state banquet, when the emperor and the czarowitz passed slowly through the salons, the Russian prince did not in any way acknowledge the emperor's salute, and his ostentatious indifference excited a variety of caustic criticisms. — London Punch.

Among the resolutions passed by the Liberal Federation at its recent Manchester meeting was one demanding a popular vote on the question of disestablishing the Church of England. Consumption. Ballard's Horehound Syrup. No single disease has played such bad havoc with the human race as consumption. Other diseases approach so stealthily. Its early symptoms are ignored because it is thought only a cold or headache, which is relieved, and the germ of the monster from many a throat. If it is not checked, it will eventually reach the lungs, and will affect a permanent cure, and the worst case will give up the ghost, and the victim will be a corpse. A Present That Wasn't Made.

In a certain family, as the Christmas season came around, it was resolved to try an experiment. Every member of the family wrote out a list of the Christmas presents that he or she would like to get, and hung it on the chimney piece for the guidance of those who were going to make gifts. It was rather convenient and nice all around. But a young man of the family conceived the idea of throwing a little humor into the list of things he wanted, and among the other articles he put down as desirable Christmas presents was the name of a cat that lived in the house; and the young man could not possibly have his cat's tail for a present, because it was bottled. It was a fairly good joke; but it happened that a member of the family, who wasn't very good at orthography, took this entry for the name of a book, and having a partiality for the young man, started off on a tour through the book stores in search of it. "Have you 'The Tail of Roberto?'" she asked, as a very large and entirely first class store. The bookseller scratched his head for a moment, and made answer: "No; we haven't it in stock just now, but we can send and get it for you." — Boston Transcript.

Frecks. Punxsutawney has a boy who, when he reads, turns everything upside down. Newspapers are his hobby, and he reads them when inverted best. This peculiar faculty was not inborn, but acquired. The child did not go to school, but passed the time away in a room, the walls of which were covered with newspapers. The latter were generally upside down, and by reading from the bottom upward he became familiar with inverted print. George Broombaugh, a 9-year-old pupil of Mapleton, is an ambidexter of a peculiar nature. He writes equally as well with either hand. However, when he writes with his left hand the copybook is reversed—topside down—and the letters are formed in an inverted position. When writing with the right hand the copybook is in the usual position. All efforts at correction have proved futile. — Harrisburg (Pa.) Telegram.

Why Not Save Money When You Can?

A Penny Saved Is a Penny Earned.

What we eat costs us more money than any other of our wants, and especially is this true if we do not seize every opportunity to buy where we can do so to the best advantage. Logan & Beik are the pioneers of Low Prices in groceries, and those who have patronized them know how well the claim is based. What is the sense in paying high prices when you can buy the same goods for less money? They refer to the following price list to show that they are not indulging in windy bragging when they claim to sell goods at lower prices than their competitors, and a simple trial will convince the most skeptical that their goods are all that can be desired:

THE SHE WOLF MAGGIE.

A Fair Creature Who Belies the Character of Her Race.

FOR SALE: Beautiful, tame she wolf, 7 months old. Apply at Cafe Rudolph, Chicago House, 275 State Street.

Such was one of the host of advertisements which appeared recently in The Tribune's "Personal" column. Just to learn how the she wolf market stood now, whether it was buoyant or depressed, or merely still, whether any one was "belling" it or "shearing" it, a reporter was detailed to look up the thing. He started out to find the Cafe Rudolph.

The Cafe Rudolph is a myth. There is no such place in Chicago, and the Chicago house is not at the number indicated. There is a Chicago house, though, an evidently thriving hotel, a few doors north of the number given, and there the inquirer went. He found in the hotel office a lady who seemed to be in a degree of authority, and who said she was merely keeping guard while the day clerk dined. She said also that there was no cafe attached to the hotel, and that she knew of no Cafe Rudolph in the neighborhood. Perhaps the clerk could tell. In time the clerk came down. He, too, was puzzled. Finally a light dawned upon him. "It must be the Capt. Rudolph who is here," said he; "that's what it means." Capt. Rudolph was out. The lady at the desk said no she wolves had been or would be kept at the hotel. The clerk suggested leaving a note for the captain, which suggestion was urged upon, and so the first effort to get figures on the wolf market ended.

Eventually Capt. Rudolph was found. He proved to be a clean cut, bronze faced man, half cowboy, half Chicagoan in appearance, who lives at Evanston, and eats at the Chicago house when in town. On his muscular neck was a bright red scar. He was asked how wolves were going now, and how she wolves were quoted in particular. He laughed: "You want to learn about Maggie?" he said, and then he became sober of countenance. "I don't like to part with her," he added.

The story of Maggie was, of course, asked promptly, and the outcome of all the talk which followed was something curious about wolves in general, and one wolf especially. Capt. Rudolph is interested in a ranch on the Beaver river, in Boone county, Nebraska. He has lived and worked on the ranch, and is going back there because his interests demand it, and because the "women folk" on there think he should be looking after his own. That is why he wants to sell Maggie, the she wolf. He cannot carry her about the country with him. He has tried that once, and has found it is not only expensive but, occasionally, most embarrassing.

"Who and what is Maggie? Tell her story," was the request made. "Well, Maggie is a river wolf, but she is not like other wolves. I have tried to tame her (often, but couldn't). Maggie is different. She became tame at once. She knows things. She is like a gentle dog."

"How did you get her?" "She was one of six cubs. There is a little story to that. The wolves got in Beaver county and we turned out to hunt them. I found a lot of cubs in a cave. I was coming out with them when the old mother came back. I should have seen her. She sat at my feet but I could not see her. She got her teeth in me. See this scar?"

The scar already alluded to was distinct enough, red and jagged and slightly protruding from the healing.

"Well," continued the captain, "I managed to finish her with a revolver, and I took the cubs to a ranch and tried to raise them. They did not thrive. Only one of them—that's Maggie—lived. But she was worth all the trouble. She does not like a wolf. She played with the children and never got ugly. She even played with a tame badger we had. You can pat her head and treat her as you would a setter dog. When I came to Chicago I brought her with me. It made me laugh to see people on the railroad trains afraid of her. She wouldn't hurt a kitten. I've grown fond of her. I don't want to let her go, but I cannot carry her about with me. I only want to see that she gets into good hands. That is why I advertised."

Maggie was visited. Maggie occupies a kennel like a dog back of the house in Evanston. She is fair to look upon—a wolf, but not like other wolves. She is sleek and trim, a trifle smaller than the big gray wolf and somewhat darker. She acts as a good dog, though she has the head and tail of a wolf. Her head could be patted, and she had a confiding way. She was as affable to the stranger as to her own. "That's where a wolf is different from a dog," said Capt. Rudolph. "A wolf does not care for one person in particular. A good wolf is equally good to everybody. And Maggie is the only one."

Such is the story of Maggie, the she wolf who was advertised.—Chicago Tribune.

An Obituary Notice.
A special from Frankfort, Ky., says: "This afternoon, about 4 o'clock, a decent looking countryman went to the gate of the prison and asked permission to go in and look through. The privilege was granted upon payment of the fee of twenty-five cents, and the man remained within the walls about an hour, when he left and proceeded to take in the sights of interest in the city. About 6 o'clock he returned to the prison, introduced himself to the warden and presented his commitment papers as a convict, sent from Bell county for one year for malicious cutting. He came without arms, because, he said, the sheriff of Bell county was unwilling to put the state to the expense of a guard. This is the second Kentucky convict who has come voluntarily and unguarded to the prison."

The next question to be discussed by the Brooklyn Women's club is, "How Much Time Can We, in Justice to Ourselves and Our Homes, Give to Outside Matters?" If the husbands were allowed to take part in this discussion it would soon be settled.

MRS. D. J. WILCOX, of Horse Cave, Ky., adds a testimonial, saying he "positively believes he would have died, had it not been for Electric Bitters." "This great remedy will ward off, as well as cure all Malarial Diseases, and for all Kidney, Liver and Stomach Disorders stands unequaled. Price, 50c and 81c at Dr. J. Storer's Drug Store."
